Business Has to Look Ahead

We were writing last month about the curious fact that even those industries whose civilian production is now entirely diverted to war materials feel it necessary to keep their national brands alive in the memory of the people with advertising. Now comes Raymond Moley with an article in Newsweek telling about an experience of the last war.

Removal of All Non-Essential Laws Asked

WASHINGTON — (AP)— Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the War Production Board demanded of state government representatives Tuesday removal of non-essential laws and regulations which hamper transportation or conservation of war materials.

Speaking to a conference of state representatives called by President Roosevelt the WPB had said:

"We are repeatedly finding that our struggle to save these materials is being tripped up by some non-essential state or local law not only transportation and building construction but all across the board."

He said one problem was the confusion of state and local laws which limit the size and cargo of commercial trucks.

Speaking on trucking regulations he said shortage of gas, rubber and repair parts going to give motor transport operators were handicapped enough.

"The very least we can do is to make sure no un-necessary handicap is added."

He told of how in Arkansas this spring workmen who tried to pool their cars for riding to work were stopped by state police who said they would need commercial carrier licenses.

Police Head Denies Charge

LITTLE ROCK — (AP)— Superintendent Gray Albright of the state police asserted Tuesday that Chairman Donald M. Nelson of the War Production Board was "wrongly informed in charging that Arkansas state police stopped workmen who tried to pool cars for riding to work."

"The state police has never stopped any workman from hauling fellow workmen or doing anything to delay or hinder defense work,"

Local Men on List Navy Dead

Three men from the Hope area appeared on the first official casualty list of dead or missing issued Monday night by the Navy Department.

The total for Arkansas was 62. The three local men named were: Earl Maurice Ellis, radioman, third class, Navy, son of Mrs. Margaret Alice Ellis, Hope.

Harold Coplin Nelson, seaman, first class, Navy, son of Joseph Frank Nelson, Rosston.

Houston Oliver Wallace, water tender, first class, Navy, son of Mrs. Mildred McCullian, Stamps.

Steel Banned for Civilians

WASHINGTON — (AP)— The government ordered Monday a halt in use of iron and steel for more than 400 classes of common civilian articles. Thousands of manufacturing plants were commanded by the War Production Board to cease production on a long list of items containing iron and steel within 90 days. Limited production was permitted up to the deadline.

Included in the sweeping ban were bathtubs, mail boxes, fountain pens, pie plates, cash registers, cigarette lighters, house numbers, automobile accessories, theater marquees, fly traps, tool axes, pleasure boats, mop wringers and street light standards.

Sergeant Philip Gaughan of the U. S. Marines fired America's first shot in the Spanish - American war in 1898.

Enemy Fighting Way Up Burma Road Lifeline

CHUNGKING — (AP)— Japanese troops invaded China's Yunnan province Tuesday after driving up the Burma road and crossing the shallow Wuntho river, 670 miles from this capital, a military spokesman said.

Bitter fighting is in progress in the area around the border town of Wuntho, still in the hands of the Chinese, the spokesman reported.

He declared that destruction of the Chinese section of the Burma road which winds through sheer mountain and geyser gorges had not yet been necessary but that the Chinese would carry out their scorched earth policy if necessary.

Thus in little less than two months the Japanese invaders of Burma had driven 500 miles from Rangoon to China's back door. The great Burma port which the Japanese have since utilized as its main supply base fell March 8.

The advance to Wuntho represented a 90-mile drive along the Burma supply road from Lashio, the railroad which was wrested from the outnumbered and outgunned Chinese army commanded by U. S. Lt. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell.

The Army spokesman described the Japanese force as small. The vanguard, however, appeared to pose a distant threat to the Chinese capital of Chungking, some 670 miles away, across the high mountains and deep gorges.

The Japanese appeared intent upon severing communications between the Chinese of the left flank and the British on the right—at the wild mountain approaches to India, the spokesman said.

Chinese troops to the south of the main battlezone at Lunging have started guerrilla warfare, he said, tactfully acknowledging collapse of a sustained drive against the Japanese rear.

Pilsen Bombed Heavily by RAF

By the Associated Press

British warplanes heavily bombed the great Souda armament works at Pilsen in Nazi-occupied Czechoslovakia before dawn Tuesday, dropped flares and leaflets over Vichy in unoccupied France and attacked the big war foundry city of Stuttgart in southwest Germany.

A German broadcast that the R. A. F. "attack" Vichy with incendiary bombs which brought action from French anti-aircraft batteries, but Vichy reported that the planes merely dropped propaganda and observation flares.

Other RAF planes carrying out a widespread series of night attacks pounded the docks at Nantes, occupied France and bombed shipping off the coast of Holland and Norway.

German night raiders struck back with 30 plane attack on the English south coast, dropping bombs on Cowes and Eastborne.

Nevada Man Arrested on Liquor Charge

Dick Martin of Prescott was arrested by Hope Police Monday afternoon on a charge of possessing untaxed liquor. Authorities seized 7½ gallons of untaxed liquor from Martin's automobile.

He was turned over to the Hempstead county sheriff pending trial.

Camden Aviation School Tribute to Enterprise of Camden's Own Citizenry

Editor's Note: Arkansas and the war. What are our cities doing in the fight for victory? This is another in a series written exclusively for The Associated Press by editors of AP papers describing conditions in their communities.

Camden News

CAMDEN, Ark. — "Everything comes to him who waits," or something like that.

Camden citizens tried to get what we've always called a "war plant" but which for a few years were known as "defense plants." The politicians, the lobbyists, the various blocs in Little Rock and Washington, the office holders and those who wanted to be office holders were contacted and asked to help. The chamber of commerce went all-out. Local businessmen gave and gave.

But they depended on others and the others failed.

So Camden people went to work themselves.

Today, hundreds of workmen are busy turning out of South Arkansas finest farms, four miles northwest of this city, into the Camden Aviation School where more than 500 Army cadets will get their primary flight training. The E. W. Higgins Airways, Inc., had contract for this training and over 100 civilian instructors, mechanics, etc., in addition to Army officers and personnel will be here for this work. The Wessell Construction Co., Memphis, has contract to build the field, erect barracks, administration building and other structures on the 600-acre tract.

The Camden citizens got this big school on their own. Led by Mayor Don Harrell, City Engineer Mack Graves and members of the city council, the business men got busy. They raised $55,000-$30,000 through a bond issue and $25,000 by public subscription—and bought the land after getting War Department approval for the school. Now we have something that will be here after the war. Camden will have a modern airport.

The contract with the War Department provides that after the war the airport and training field, together with all equipment, will revert to the city.

There is no rent gouging here and no need for it as there wasn't any "war boom." Local people are thankful now that, although they tried awfully hard to get a big plant.

Local folks have kept right on buying war bonds and stamps at the rate of $80,000 per month which is above the county's quota. The membership war bond drive started today.

The civilian defense setup has been completed. First aid classes are being held regularly. Camden is battalion headquarters for the State Guard and a Camden man is the major of this battalion. Every citizen is anxious to do his or her part and there is no lagging here.

Camden's own Battery "E" of the 20th Coast Artillery, anti-aircraft was one of the first units to be called to the "front." More than 125 Camden and Ouachita county youths are serving at outposts. In addition, hundreds of others are in other units of the armed forces, some in Australia, some in the Philippines, some at sea.

Camden citizens are anxious to help and merely await orders.

Nazi Generals May Institute a New Rule

LONDON — (AP)— A group of Adolf Hitler's generals headed by Field Marshal Walther von Brauchitsch were reported to have told the Führer bluntly that if his 1942 campaign in Russia failed they will try to institute for Germany an alternate plan of their own calling for the abolition of the Nazi system.

A responsible source with reliable information about conditions inside Germany said Hitler had accepted the challenge calmly and appointed von Brauchitsch a member of the supreme command.

Hitler relieved him as commander in chief last December 21, and announced that he himself, relying on his intuition, had assumed direct command of his armies.

The army leader was said to have confidence and backing of important military leaders.

All were reported distrustful of Hitler's intuition generally and the extension of greater power to the Gestapo with which the army frequently has clashed.

There was no hint on information whether the army clique threatened Hitler with displacement or promised him some kind of chieftainship in the new order they would institute if his plans failed, the source said.

The quarters added that he believed the generals might want to turn the campaign elsewhere rather than to Russia and to halt offensive warfare to seek to hold German gains by defensive fighting.

The clique might even strive for removal of Hitlerism to gain a negotiated peace favorable to Germany.

Informants said there were hints of some kind of German political friction involving Reichsmarshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering.

Baptist Meet Draws Crowds

The revival at First Baptist church has been drawing large crowds to morning and night services. The Rev. James W. Middleton, who was held an extra day in San Angelo, Texas to conduct the funeral of an air crash victim, reached Hope early Tuesday and preached at the morning service on "Walking With God." He will preach at the Tuesday night service and twice daily thereafter. Services are at 10 a. m. and 8 p. m.

"Every person ought to have as the normal experience of his life the privilege of walking with God," said the Texas pastor Tuesday morning. "He may have that blessed privilege if he will. It should be a vital experience of his life. He misses something from life here and hereafter if he doesn't walk with God."

Rev. Hamilton delivered a message Monday night on the "Home." He took his text from the 15 Chapter of 1st Chronicles. His definition of home was where the Ark of God is.

He stated that there were three kinds of homes, the earthly home, the church home and the Heavenly Home.

"The privilege and responsibility of the earthly home is to send forth Christians into the world," stated Rev. Hamilton. The Church home is founded of God and is a spiritual body with spiritual aims, not a social group. The heavenly home is the place Christ promised in the book of John when he said, "I go to prepare a place for you."

In closing Brother Hamilton left with his congregation this thought, "What kind of materials are being put into our homes?" and "are we thinking about Spiritual Real Estate?"

The public is invited to attend all services of the revival. Officials of the church are especially desirous that the small number of members who have been unable to attend a service since the opening of the "Go to Church Campaign" may attend one or more by Sunday and register their presence by dropping names in the collection plates.

Lillard Adams Dies in Alaska

Lillard N. Adams, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Adams of Emmet Route Two, living in the Laneburg community of Nevada county, has presumably drowned on the Alaskan coast, an Army telegram informed the family Tuesday.

In a telegram dispatched from Yakutat, Alaska, Tuesday morning Captain Henry B. Whitley said:

"Lillard N. Adams missing since 2 p. m. today (presumably Monday). Caught by undertow while bathing on the beach, and it is feared that he is lost."

Adams was 20 years old. He joined the National Guard at Magnolia while enrolled in the A. & M. college, and went to Alaska with the first movement of National Guard troops to that American outpost.

School to Open Again Friday

City Superintendent Beryl Henry announced Tuesday that Hope High School's reopening of classes would be delayed until Friday, because of the heavy demands made upon local teachers by the sugar ration registration campaign.

High school classes were to have been resumed Wednesday, but the reopening has been postponed until Friday. The same order applies to the grade schools, the superintendent said.

All local schools therefore will continue in recess until Friday.

Hit-Run Driver Kills Convict

CUMMINS PRISON, Arkansas— (AP)— A trustee convict was burned fatally and his companion injured when a work truck in which they were returning to the prison camp was sideswiped and wrecked by a passing car near Pine Bluff Monday night.

Cecil Cartwright, 27, of Booneville, died in a Pine Bluff hospital Tuesday and Jeff Lawson, 47, Crittenden county, who suffered burns about the hands and legs in an effort to extricate Cartwright from the cab of the flaming wrecked truck, was expected to recover.

Officials said the pair had taken a crew of 40 convicts laborers to the Free Bridge near Pine Bluff to repair caving banks that threatened the Arkansas river span.

The two men were returning to the prison camp when the truck was sideswiped by a private automobile which did not stop, officials said.

British Forces Attack Base on Madagascar

LONDON — (AP)— British commandos, marines and infantry landed on the northern tip of Madagascar Tuesday and a Vichy news agency broadcast that they were attacking the strong French naval base of Diego Suarez from the rear while warships and squadrons of airplanes assaulted the harbor frontally.

France's 86-year-old chief of state, Petain and Admiral Darlan, anti-British chief of French armed forces were reported to have sent messages to the commander in chief at Madagascar urging the troops to resist attack and defend the honor of the French flag.

A German broadcast said there had been French casualties and that fighting continued more than 36 hours after the British troops landed Monday at the Courier Bay, 10 miles across the Isthmus from Diego Suarez.

2 Vessels Sunk

DNB, German news agency, reported that a French submarine and a tender had been sunk at Madagascar, resisting the British landings.

French reservists were said to have been called up with orders to fight the British.

As the occupation forces moved in on the Vichy French colony informed London sources said there was a possibility the Japanese may take the boldest course and strike directly at Madagascar.

Fear Jap Attack

In view of the swift British action, however, they thought the Japanese who believed to have a big battle squadron on the move in the Indian ocean would seek first to secure bases on the British island of Ceylon or Mauritius.

The Allied naval positions in those waters remained obscure. Informed quarters agreed that the United Nations had "won the first trick" in the Indian ocean by the British landing on Madagascar at dawn with wide speculation on the possibility of Axis attacks.

Roosevelt Note

VICHY — (AP)— Chief of Government Laval declared Tuesday night that he had received a note from President Roosevelt demanding that France not defend Madagascar against the British attack and that the Vichy government regarded this note as inadmissible.

France will not make the first move toward a rupture with the U. S., he said. Addressing a press conference he declared in a husky voice:

"The French government leaves to President Roosevelt his part of the responsibility of the eventual consequences of this aggression."

Hospital Note — Don't Linger

OAKLAND, Calif. — (AP)— Hospitals here are trying to shorten the length of their patients' stay, to be better equipped for war emergencies. It is hoped to cut the average stay from ten to nine days, largely by dismissing maternity cases earlier than usual.

Private institutions are running virtually at capacity, owing partly to increased population springing from defense factories and partly to hospital service plans.

We, the Women

Girls: Get Behind Your Men And Give War Effort a Boost

By RUTH MILLETT

Hospitals are practically crying for nurses.

A recent survey made by the University of California's bureau of public administration shows that men are ahead of women six to one in receiving civilian defense training. War industries need more women workers. Why aren't women in greater numbers answering such calls?

The reason is the majority of women—even those who want to do something to help—don't yet feel that they are equally responsible with men for winning the war.

A great many of them still think that it is their privilege to choose whatever kind of war work particularly appeals to them, and that the major consideration is to get something pleasant to do, and some thing that won't call for any reorganization of their lives.

Even those mothers who feel strongly that it is the duty of their sons to risk their lives to win this war, don't feel that it is the duty of their daughters to do anything more than knit a sweater or two and serve now and then on a committee for a benefit.

Soldier-Sons Need the Help

Their sons can dig ditches in the army but they don't want their daughters working in a war production plant—even though they know their sons are dependent on war workers for their equipment

FRANTIC WEEKEND

By EDMUND FANCOTT

TALENT SCOUT CHAPTER XVIII

FERDY, Peggy was pleased to note, had decided to join Fay in co-operating with whatever devious plan the younger girl had in mind. He filled Baldy's glass again while Peggy carried on the Baldy eulogy, embellishing his confidences of the afternoon.

She described how Baldy had "wowed 'em" in the days before burlesque had come to stay with his act that shared billing with a lady of unquestionable charm—one Blossom. "Wowed 'em," that is, until he made the mistake of marrying her. Her words tumbled out with feigned admiration and enthusiasm that mellowed Baldy until he beamed and struck the rest of the company, and especially Nigel, as high comedy. She had no regard for sequence, but her praise of Baldy, her mock saga of his sometimes savoring but never colorless career, fell on receptive ears. Even Myra forgot her misgivings in admiration for this glib and entertaining youngster.

"We could learn so much from Baldy," Peggy rattled on.

The rest, tumbling to the spirit of the thing, joined in, and soon Baldy basked in the position that flattered him most. As the center of the company he had been frozen out of a few minutes before—and center of it thanks to Peggy—he was soon taking over the account of his personal history and adding glorious, if alcoholic, embellishments even Peggy hadn't dreamed of.

The upshot of it all was that after dinner he was mellowed and anxious to demonstrate just where his own particular talents could lead them.

Peggy egged him on and was promoted to the role of the lady Blossom for purposes of demonstration. Fay played the piano.

"Say," said Baldy to Peggy after the first few tryouts. "You can dance! Now try this one."

He began to tap and Peggy followed him with a natural knack for picking up steps. Then he demonstrated how Blossom would make a mistake and how he would and how they'd quarrel and how

Canada's Cost of Living Rises

By FRED S. FERGUSON
President of NEA Service

OTTAWA, Ont. — After four months of toll and sweat, and the enlistment of virtually every man and woman in the Dominion in the effort, Canada is able to report progress today in an unprecedented battle against the country's deadly enemy from within—inflation.

The upward curve of the cost of living index for Canada has been checked.

This has been accomplished, not on any piece-meal or partial price-control basis, but through the establishment of an over-all ceiling on all prices, on all wages, salaries, services, rents and virtually everything that has to do with the life of the nation. It was a daring experiment, but it was presented to the country as the only means of avoiding economic disaster during this hectic war period while employment and buying power are skyrocketing to new levels and demands for consumer goods, accompanied by shortages, are doing the same.

Employers and wage earners alike were appealed to. The women of the country, who do 80 per cent of the purchasing, were enlisted to watch their prices. Volunteers from groups representing all leading industries and businesses were called in to help administer the job which is being handled through the Wartime Prices and Trade Board headed by Donald Gordon, deputy Governor of the Bank of Canada.

The appeal to enlist in the fight on inflation as a matter of patriotism, by bringing about price and wage stabilization, was as direct as an appeal for enlistment in the fighting forces. The country responded, and while there was plenty of skepticism and doubt in the beginning, the degree of cooperation and hope of ultimate success has steadily risen, rather than declined.

A vital and integral part of the Canadian price and wage control is subsidy. Heretofore the Dominion has had a "wage bonus" scheme which called for the payment of weekly bonuses as cost of living indexes might change. This, it was reasoned, however, merely contributed to the inflation spiral by feeding more money into the race against prices.

Under the price and wage ceiling, the money is paid at the other end of the line, so that prices may remain unchanged and wages remain stabilized. The subsidy is thus for the benefit of the consumer, since payment of any subsidy is accompanied by an examination of profits, and this means profit control as part of the general picture. This, despite the fact that the Canadian income tax on excess profits is 84 per cent.

It is apparent, however, that the government would be contributing a minimum of 16 per cent in event of any excess profits being shown by subsidy beneficiaries, and this will be kept under control.

As to results to date, the index for the cost of living in Canada was based at par, or 100, as of August, 1939. This figure rose to 107.1 by December, 1940. From April, 1941, to November, 1941, it rose more than 8 points to 115.4.

Immediately after this, however, the effects of the new price and wage ceiling policy began to show and the index for last December dropped to 114.0.

In January of this year, it was 114.5 and February showed 114.8. The index thus showed virtual stabilization during four months. There was no marked decline, but at the rate of increase prevailing during the months prior to December, it is felt that there certainly would have been a further rise of from 10 to 15 per cent, during this four-month period, had there been no control.

During the same period, without control, the index of the United Kingdom has soared to 130 and that of the United States has shown a steady rise until it approaches that of Canada.

It should be understood that no wages or prices are, or have been, "fixed" by the Wartime Prices and Control Board of Canada. The prices and wages that prevail, and over which there is now a ceiling, were established by sellers and buyers themselves, or by employers and employees.

The time between September 15, 1941, and October 11, however, was established as the "basic period" by order of the government. Then a ceiling was put over this basic period. Whatever goods were selling for during that period became the price under the ceiling.

Whatever salaries or wages men or women were receiving during that time remain under the ceiling. This goes for the top executive, as well as the man working by the hour. Bonuses are prohibited unless it can be shown that a system of bonus payment prevailed prior to the establishment of the "basic period."

The boss cannot raise his own salary any more than he can raise the pay of a workman. Whatever rent the workman was paying between September 15 and October 11 became fixed-rent, and, at whatever rate he, and the boss as well, may have been paying for electricity, gas, water, telephone, plumbing, heating, painting, repairs of any kind, laundry, cleaning, tailoring, dressmaking, or for a haircut or shave or a hair-do or facial at the beauty parlor for the wife—all these costs come under the ceiling.

There are 12 "services" in all that come under the ceiling. A Canadian can even die knowing that it will cost him no more than the rate prevailing during the "basic period," since undertaking and embalming are listed among the 12 services under ceiling. Most professional services, such as doctors, lawyers and financial services are ceiling-exempt.

As to clothing and other merchandise, meats, other foodstuffs and canned goods, all prices are not the same even for equal quality. For instance, if one merchant was selling a suit or overcoat for $35 during the basic period and another one offering a similar garment for $40 or $45, each retains his price under the ceiling. The merchant charging at the higher price may have a sale and reduce his price if he wants to, but the $35 price can't be raised.

Or an independent grocer may have been selling beans at 15 cents a can, whereas a chain store was offering them at 13 cents or two cans for a quarter. The ceiling applies to the independent at 15 cents and to the chain at 13 cents. And the disposition, as the Wartime Prices and Trade Board is operating, would be to subsidize the independent and enable him to keep his price down, rather than permit the chain to break its ceiling in the event conditions in the future made it difficult for both.

There are a number of things not under the ceiling, such as fresh fruits and other seasonal items, live animals, birds, flower seeds and bulbs, hay, straw and so on. Onions and potatoes were put under the ceiling only last month.

They were originally exempted as a result of recognition of seasonal fluctuation of price, but when evidences of speculative influences appeared, the ceiling went on. To cover the waste in storage from sprouting, rotting and shrinkage at this time of year, however, an increase in price of five cents per bushel per month during April, May and June was permitted under an order issued April 2. When the new potato crop comes in, a ceiling will be put on that.

When President Warren G. Harding called a "business meeting" of the government, the first of its kind, several high-ranking Marine Corps officers attended. When Prince Henry of Prussia visited the United States in 1902, he was officially greeted by a battalion of U. S. Marines.

Going to Sea on Great Lakes

By NEA Service
GREAT LAKES, Ill.—"Going to sea!" That's the magic old phrase that today beckons eager lads from inland farms and factories to the Great Lakes Naval Training Station.

Scarcely one among a thousand new arrivals has ever seen a boat bigger than a river ferry. Lake Michigan seems a boundless ocean, and most of the recruits whistle in astonishment when they catch their first glimpse of it. But as their "boot" training at Great Lakes nears completion, they fight for chances at combat duty assignments in the ocean battle zones.

Typical of the Navy's new fighters is the group pictured above. They might be going on a basketball trip to a neighboring county as they pack their gear and leave for duty aboard a Navy ship.

En route to a seacoast port by train, they read, play bridge, look at the scenery. In the dining car they envy the tray-laden waiter his "sea legs," get practice developing their own as they try to shave in the rocking car. They "kid" the porter good-naturally, and get excellent service—without tips. They compare Pullman berths with their hammocks of the past weeks.

It's a great moment when they unload themselves and their packs from a Navy truck at the pier and catch their first sight of the ocean and their new ship. Excitement mounts as they clatter up the gang-plank and, for the first time, set foot on the deck of a warship.

Before the ship weighs anchor several nights later they must put their training to a practical test, learn new terms and new duties, get acquainted with their battle stations, fit themselves in as a small part of a veteran crew.

And when the ship slips out of harbor in the darkness the new men at their posts, tense, alert and ready for their first war-time job.

Ancient Glory Used by Nazis

By PETER EDSON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

Keep an eye on the Spanish Falange in Latin America! That word has gone the rounds of gossip in nearly every group interested in the welfare of the Western hemisphere. It has been discounted or magnified out of all true proportion so that today the Falange is reported and reputed to be everything from an innocent cultural society like the English Speaking Union, up through all the grades of anti-liberalism, anti-masonry, anti-Communism to include the charge that it is a German-dominated fifth column assigned to destroy Pan-Americanism through terrorism.

Philosophy Varies in Different Countries

Actually, the Spanish Falange is none of these things and, paradoxically, it is all of them. It is one thing in Mexico, another in Chile, still another in Argentina. To that extent it is mysterious and indefinable.

The origin of the Spanish Falange, however, is no great mystery and from the information of various authoritative sources in Europe and Latin America, the organization, methods and aims of the Fa-

After An RAF Raid on Germany

A street scene in Lubeck, Germany after the R. A. F. made one of the most devastating bombing raids on record. This photo was first published in a German magazine with the caption reading "England may be sure we shall remember it." R. A. F. bombers continue to their heavy raids on Nazi-held Europe. Photo passed by British censor and U. S. mail censor.

langists can be put together to make a reasonable, rational and accurate record.

The Spanish Falange came into being before the Spanish civil war as one of Spain's many political parties. It was revolutionary, but right wing reactionary. Roughly, it was in inspiration and conception the same breed of cat as Italian Fascism or German Nazism. Franco was not then connected with it.

After Franco began to get help for his revolution from Germany, the Nazis sent down a delegate from Berlin. He was General von Faupel, a soldier who had lived in South America for many years.

Germans Remake Old Ideas
As head of a German military mission von Faupel was more than just a good soldier and, backed by the German Government, he brought along with him into Spain certain ideas which, though old Spanish empire in origin, were strictly remade in Germany.

These ideas stemmed back to the 19th century when there was formed at the University of Hamburg a German Institute for the Study of Economic Conditions in South America. It was a part of the University, but it was financed by steamship lines and other companies which had the purely commercial interest of encouraging travel and commerce.

Coupled with this was a Nazi organization, known as the Institute for Germans Abroad. Its headquarters were at Stuttgart and under the guiding genius of a man named von Bohle, it banded together all the German skating clubs and singing societies and such groups of German emigrants in foreign countries, for subversive purposes.

Shortly after Hitler entered the picture, the Nazis, with characteristic efficiency, began their famous catalogue of Germans all over the world. The Nazi Auslands Organization was set up to take in both the other groups and this consolidation was directed for Latin America by a holding company or steering committee which took the name of Ibero-American Institute, under General von Faupel.

This last mentioned group really had three-part control from the Nazi party, the German army and the German foreign office under Joachim von Ribbentrop. The Ibero-American Institute branched out and now has offices in San Sebastian, Barcelona, and Madrid. The program of the Ibero-American Institute now began to be revealed. With all the historical and cultural research of the older organizations as background, there were revived some of the traditions of the old Spanish empire dating clear back to the reign of Philip the Second.

From this 15th century golden era of Spain the doctrine of "Hispanidad" was created. Philip's Council of the Indies was to be re-established and with it, the "Spiritual" or "Mystic" union of all the Spanish speaking people of Latin America and even the Philippines. This was formed the "Consejo de Hispanidad" under Franco, which was really run for the Nazis by General von Faupel.

This was the dream doctrine. It did not meet with unqualified acceptance or success in Spain, but the propaganda goes merrily on in the Americas, because the Nazis run it.

What's Nation Coming to?

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE
Wide World Features Writer

WASHINGTON—Lovers of tidbits in tins have been taking it on the chin, but the canned food situation isn't all on the dismal side.
When Uncle Sam added canned pork and beans (along with beer, coffee, and corned beef hash in tin containers) to the consumer goods casualty list, it was bad news indeed to many a devotee of packaged edibles.

However, canned food prospects in general are not half so gloomy as the rush to stock up on favorite items may lead you to believe. If hoarders don't run amuck and if crop weather is normal, next winter's supply of several of the most popular canned fruits and vegetables should be fairly close to normal.

Except for dried beans, sweet potatoes, potatoes, apple butter and whole apricots, the use of tin cans has not been prohibited for any important vegetables or fruits.

Where They Save
The bulk of tin savings under present regulation will come from the elimination of small-sized cans, from the ban on tin containers for beer, dog food, dry beans, baking powder, cereals, coffee and spices, tobacco and petroleum products and from using thinner tin plate on all cans.

Such old standbys as canned green peas, tomatoes, sweet corn, peaches and pears are classed as primary products. For these, tin containers restrictions apply only to the size of the cans. In this primary class also are salmon and sardines, tomato juice, catsup and chili sauce, honey, concentrates of orange, lemon, lime and grapefruit and baby formulas.

More Peas, Tomatoes
Green peas for canning acreage indicate a pack 26 per cent larger than in 1941. A 27 per cent increase in canned tomatoes is the production goal set by the Department of Agriculture. While the Army will take a sizeable percentage, satisfactory supplies of these two popular foods are in prospect.

Some foods, ordinarily canned, can be packed in glass containers. However, certain foods will be affected by restrictions designed to conserve rubber used as glass jar closures.

No Tin For These
Canners figure that animal food, macaroni, spaghetti, whole apricots, whole carrots and whole pears are excluded from the use of glass unless research enables such foods to be packed without use of a rubber closure.

Canned vegetables stocks have been shrinking so rapidly agricultural authorities are urging the adoption of some form of restricted distribution, short of card rationing.

Real Offensive by Yugoslavs

By NEA Service

Anyone who wants to could probably send Adolf Hitler into a fit of the screaming meemies just by going up behind him and suddenly yelling "Guerrillas!"
The Russian guerrillas on one flank and the Yugoslavs on the other have been nipping and slashing at the Nazis like hunting dogs bringing down a wild pig.
And now Gen. Draja Mihailovitch and his wild-fighting Chetnik irregulars appear ready to undertake a real offensive from their mountain strongholds in Yugoslavia. For more than a year they have been thwarting the Germans, driving the Italians half wacky on the eastern shore of the Adriatic, diverting much-needed Axis divisions from the vital Russian front.

Big Offensive Could Stymie Hitler

A real offensive by Gen. Mihailovitch could seriously gum up Hitler and Co.'s schemes for a drive to the east, to Turkey and the rich oil fields of Iraq and Iran and on to a junction with the Japs in India.

In connection with the looked-for Yugoslav offensive, a military commission from that country is now in the United States, working out plans for United Nations support of a Balkan campaign. An effort is being made to increase the flow of supplies which Britain and Russia have managed to smuggle in to Mihailovitch's indomitable Chetnik forces.

So far Mihailovitch's hit-and-run war has been a military miracle of resourcefulness. He has trained in guerrilla warfare the thousands of courageous peasants — women as well as men — who joined him to augment the remnants of the regular Yugoslav army. Fighting largely with captured weapons, they have blown up bridges and fortifications, waylaid patrols and sentries, attacked isolated sectors of the occupying armies, disrupted communications, burned commissaries, and generally carried on extensive sabotage.

Maybe it's just Yugoslav humor, but they do say that the latest example of the guerrilla general's resourcefulness is that he is fueling captured armored vehicles with gasoline obtained in exchange for Italian prisoners. The Italian army is said to be paying him from one tin of gasoline for a private to 50 tins for a colonel.

Unit after unit of Hitler's army has been sent into the mountains to ferret out Mihailovitch and his Chetniks. Each time, they have been beaten and driven back. Soon after a recent report from Stockholm that the exiled Yugoslav government in London received assurance that the general was not still at large, but that he was raiding German garrisons less than 130 miles from the occupied capital of Belgrade.

Pulitzer Prize to Allen of AP

NEW YORK (AP)—Larry Allen, Associated Press war correspondent, was named winner of a Pulitzer prize Monday for "his stories of the British Mediterranean fleet, as an accredited correspondent attached to the fleet."

The award to Allen, born Laurence Edmund Allen, was worth $500 in cash for a distinguished example of telegraphic reporting of international affairs published in daily newspapers in the United States.

The Los Angeles (Cal.) Times was awarded the $500 gold medal for its successful campaign which resulted in clarification and confirmation "for all American newspapers of the right of free press as guaranteed under the Constitution."

Geoffrey Parsons of the New York Herald Tribune was awarded $500 for "his distinguished editorial writing during the year."

A $500 award for the most distinguished novel of the year was given to "In This Our Life" by Ellen Glasgow.

No award was made for an American play.

Margaret Leech received $500 for her book "Reveille in Washington," cited as "a distinguished book of the year upon the history of the United States."

A similar award went to William Rose Benet for "The Dust Which Is God," a volume verse.

A $500 award went to Forrest Wilson for "Crusader in Crinoline," cited as a distinguished American biography teaching patriotic and unselfish services to the people.

When General James G. Harbord of the U. S. Army was promoted to Major General in 1918, he was serenaded by the band of the Sixth Marines in France.

What "OVER THERE" Means in 1942

HOW does World War II dwarf World War I? What is America spending? How are the armed forces growing? What are American soldiers doing around the world? What are the tools of modern battle? How much will it take to win? There's an absorbing new book that answers all of these questions and scores more. It is compiled by war experts of Wide World Features. Don't miss it.

Why I Go to Church

I love the hour when in the church we thing, talk and sing of things eternal. The mind is lifted out of that that is low and unworthy. It is an inspiration to commune with God's people. It is here that by the Lord's direction and appointment we may share in a fuller measure the joys of His Presence and lead other to know Him.

How can a nation at war continue to tolerate "Publicity," published by E. J. Garner at Wichita, which commented on Pearl Harbor:

"The Japs did Sunday just what Secretary of State Hull and his war-mongering pal, Lord Halifax, of London, have been longing for—they attacked Honolulu and the Philippines. Now the United States has a war on its hands. So then what?"

By citation and quotation, space permitting, the case against these and scores of others could be made irrefutable. Truly, Mr. Biddle was restrained in the best Philadelphia Quaker tradition when he confined his epithet to "dirty little sheets."

We can fight this war very well without such publications or their authors and sponsors.

It cost millions to crown the Emperor of Japan in 1928. We'd gladly crown the whole empire today for nothing.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD

ANSWER: New York, Vermont, and Quebec.

This is a Toaster

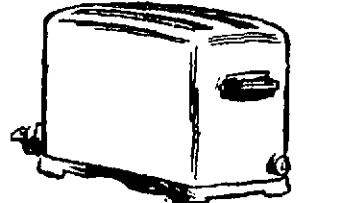

Gay Nineties model. There was a time when every home had one

Then somebody invented a better toaster. HE ADVERTISED IT. Everybody wanted it—and soon everybody had the new-type toaster instead of the old-fashioned grill.

This is an Electric Toaster

It is new and modern. Since it was first advertised many people have wanted it—many people have bought it. Every day more and more homes have electric toasters.

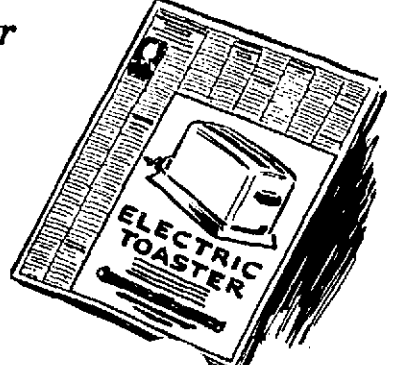

This is an Inventor

He is inventing an electric toaster

This is an Advertisement

It is advertising an electric toaster

The advertisement is just as important as the inventor. It shows people what the new toaster looks like, explains how it works, quotes its price and tells where to buy it.

IF THE PUBLIC DIDN'T KNOW THESE THINGS, THERE WOULD BE SO FEW OF THE NEW-TYPE TOASTERS MADE THAT MOST PEOPLE COULDN'T AFFORD THEM.

Once, everybody had a grill toaster. Manufacturers knew that the only way to get people to buy more toasters was to offer them better toasters. One manufacturer invented a better toaster. He advertised it.

THE RESULT WAS THAT ALL HIS COMPETITORS HAD TO MAKE BETTER TOASTERS.

COMPETITION is what makes one manufacturer want to make a better product than another manufacturer. ADVERTISING is the way he tells the public, "My product is better than it was before."

Then, of course, his competitor improves his product, so that he can truthfully advertise that his product is better, too.

So our standard of living is being improved every day because we are getting better products for the same or less money.

When business is better in this town everybody benefits. When everybody in the town knows what's going on all over the world, each man can tell better how to vote, what to buy and how to protect himself.

Read these ads each week. Tell your friends to read them. They tell you what an important part your newspaper

Competition is what is improving our standard of living.

Advertising is what keeps competition alive.

THUS ADVERTISING IS ONE OF THE MOST VITAL FORCES IN RAISING OUR STANDARD OF LIVING.

has in helping you to know what's going on, so you can decide what you personally are going to do about it all.

The publisher of this paper wants to serve the community the best he possibly can. If you have any suggestions or questions or criticisms don't hesitate to write him a letter. It will receive personal attention.
